

Women Parliamentarians of Pakistan

The Second Phase - 1962 Constitution

The second Constitution, proclaimed in 1962 provided for a National Assembly, consisting of 156 indirectly elected Members, including 6 seats for women — 3 each for both wings of the State. These were:

In addition to the above six, one woman each managed from the both wings to get herself elected from the general seats through the electoral college of its respective province. These were:

However, none of them was ever given any ministerial position or appointed as Parliamentary Secretaries.

The trend of restricting women to mere reserved seats and to no other parliamentary or governmental position was continued in the next Assembly in 1965, created under this Constitution. The six women in the new Assembly were:
